Reimagining Events under the New Normal

Exploring New Opportunities

KRAKÓW'S EVENT HORIZON (2020 and beyond)

SAVE THE DATE: 1 July 2020, 2 p.m. (duration: 1h)

Kraków Convention Bureau (Facebook page)

Organizer: The City of Kraków (Kraków Convention Bureau).

This is to invite you to a creative workshop dedicated to the challenges of the global event sector, organized by the City of Kraków (Kraków Convention Bureau).

During the Reimagining Events under the New Normal workshop we would like to invite you to one of the first two cities worldwide to be inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage List, back in 1978. Kraków has since undergone a true 41st session of the UNESCO World Heritage Committee (2017), UNESCO Creative Cities Network (2018) all the way to the 15th World Congress of the Organization of World Heritage Cities (2019). Today, Kraków is also a global stage for over 3,000 industry conferences and congresses (2019) covering technology startups, social and environmental changemakers, academic and scientific events, all the way to international industry fairs.

From Evolution to beyond)

Creativity, resilience, (disruptive) innovation, storytelling and emphasis on quality have perhaps never been more important for cities than they are today, for great many industries and for great many reasons. Some of these terms have long been little more than buzzwords and marketing clichés for many. In less than three months, however, innovation has become a critical survival skill for a lot of event-industry companies and institutions, including conference/congress centres and professional event organizers.

The last few months have truly redefined the world of industry meetings worldwide, putting many of them on hold and forcing everyone to go back to the drawing board. As the dust is slowly beginning to settle, both cities and event organizers worldwide are revisiting some of the fundamental questions around their status as host cities and centres of industry-specific activity, not to mention the many quality of life variables.

Over the past few years, Kraków has been lucky to be the host city for some of the greatest events in the world. This is not only a privilege and a success story but also, especially today, a shared responsibility for helping the world of meetings get back on its feet and do it in a way which is safe and sustainable, but also takes advantage of untapped, often hidden, cross-sector synergy effects.
